Garland dies in crash

Services for William May Garland, whose Carmel Valley ranch was recently acquired as an open space preserve, were held Monday in West Los Angeles. Mr. Garland died with his flying instructor in the crash of his light plane 10 miles west of Los Angeles May 7.

Garland's body and that of Gary Dordigan were discovered late Friday in the Tehachapi Mountains west of Gorman. They had been missing since Wednesday night when they left Van Nuys Airport on a familiarization flight in a twin-engine Cessna Skymaster.

Garland recently sold 541 acres of ranch land south of Carmel Valley Road near Los Laurelas Grade to the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District. Garland donated a portion of the land and retained about 20 acres of adjacent property.

He was the grandson of the late Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, and of William May Garland, one time head of the U. S. Olympic Committee.

Noskowiak

Sonya Noskowiak, 73, formerly of Carmel, died April 28 at Greenbrae convalescent hospital after a period of failing health.

Among her survivors are a sister, Jadwiga Babcock of Carmel Valley, and a brother, Dr. Arthur Noskowiak, Pullman, Wash.

A native of Germany, Miss Noskowiak was a professional photographer who began her career in Carmel in 1933 as a student of Edward Weston.

Sinclair

James E. Sinclair, a former prominent resident of Carmel Valley, died Sunday in Sewanee, Tenn., after a brief illness at the age of 61.

A professor at the Naval Postgraduate School from 1951 to his retirement in 1973, Mr. Sinclair and his family were longtime Valley residents and members of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church, where he organized the Sunday School and was its superintendent for several years. He was also a lay reader for the church.

Mr. Sinclair was a graduate of John Hopkins University and earned a master's degree in chemistry from NPS, where he was on the faculty of the physics and chemistry departments.

He was a member of the American Chemical Society, the American Assn. of University Professors, the American Ordnance Assn., and the American Rocket Society.

Survivors include: his wife, Pauline Sinclair of Sewanee; four sons, Mark Sinclair of Honolulu, Scott Sinclair of Utah, Craig Sinclair of Atlanta, and Winfield Sinclair of Sewanee.

A brief memorial service is planned at St. Dunstan's during the 10 a.m. service Sunday. Contributions are suggested to the John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Md.

Edgar H. Haber, right, president of Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley, accepts the Mobil Travel Guide Five Star Award, rating the Quail Lodge as "one of the best hotels in the nation." The award, a first for Quail Lodge, was this year given to only 12 hotels in the U.S. Making the presentation to Haber is K. C. Esty of Mobil Oil Corporation.

Carmel Valley briefs

May is forgiveness month in the municipal and justice courts of Monterey County for persons having outstanding minor traffic violations, the presiding judges have announced.

Citizens can clear up old traffic tickets without paying accompanying penalties if an arrest warrant was issued and can avoid having an arrest warrant served on them. The program is for minor violations only; it does not include drunk driving, reckless driving and other more serious acts.

Persons who have their California driving privilege temporarily suspended because they failed to appear on a traffic citation can have their driving license cleared by paying only the original amount of bail without the added penalty.

The presiding judges explained the forgiveness program would allow courts and law enforcement agencies throughout Monterey County to clear a high volume of outstanding traffic warrants.

Founder's Day

York students from Carmel Valley were among those hosting campus visitors for the school's Founders Day celebration Friday afternoon, and several will participate in the York School Mayfaire fund-raising event May 25.

Carmel Valley students playing host included: Andrew and Elizabeth Barrow, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Barrow; Christianna Cordrey, daughter of Mrs. Phil Cordrey; Marianne Gawain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gawain; Carl Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Green.

Ernest Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Marshall; Graham Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Graham Matthews; Robert Miguel, son of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Miguel; Jeffrey Tolhurst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tolhurst; Marc Waldroup, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Waldroup.

The Mayfaire, an old English frolic, will include entertainment, games and prizes, arts and crafts and refreshments. Admission is $2 for adults, 75 cents for students and children under 12 free. The event will be held at the school. Miss Gawain, newly elected student body president, and other Carmel Valley students will assist in the party.

Carmel Valley residents participating in the sponsorship of Mayfaire include Mr. and Mrs. John H. Pomeroy, Mrs. James R. Green, Mrs. John D. Waldroup, Gordon Barrow and Ted Gawain.

Lung Assn.

A four session workshop for people with chronic respiratory disease will be offered by the Mission Coast Lung Assn. in cooperation with Monterey Hospital on May 20 and 27 and June 3 and 10 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Conducted by staff members of Monterey and Carmel hospitals, the programs will include demonstrations of walking and breathing exercises, coughing techniques, postural drainage and percussion, plus information on medications, nutrition and fluids.

Attendance at the limited classes is by registration only. For further information call the lung association office in Aptos at 688-9249.

Steelhead Assn.

Richard L. Hughtett has been re-elected president of the Carmel River Steelhead Assn. for 1975. Elected to serve with him were Dean Ishii, vice-president, Allen Pool, secretary, Clive Rayne, treasurer, Rip Burdick, Mark Weston and Richard Lyon, directors at large.

In the project schedule for 1975 are three baby steelhead rescue programs, several river rebuild projects and two public seminars.

The association meets on the first Monday of each month at Northern California Savings and Loan in Carmel. The CRSA was founded in April of 1974 to work for restoration and conservation of the steelhead fishery on the Carmel River and in the upstream spawning grounds.

Car Wash

The Children's Choir of the Church of the Wayfarer will hold a car wash from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday in the parking lot of Northern California Savings and Loan in Carmel to help raise funds for a trip to Disneyland.

Few reports concerning Carmel Valley were given to the Monterey County Sheriff's Office during the past week, but included in the daily log were:

Theft from construction site; On May 13, William D. Whiteman, foreman at the Kraftzeck Construction Company site at Carole Place and Tierra Grande, reported the theft of a 30 inch bolt cutter.

Moved airplane: On May 11, William Wood reported someone had moved his Alon airplane from its mooring place at Carmel Valley Airport and left it 100 yards away with its tail section extending onto the runway. The plane was pulled from its mooring.

Home burglarized; On May 9, Monique Morris, 69 Los Laurelas Grade, reported his home had been burglarized sometime between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Missing were coins, two man's rings, two man's leather jackets, and two pairs of girls' socks.

Carmel Valley Ranch proposes living filter

by LESLIE JOHNSON

A "living filter" system for sewage treatment and a mutual water company for domestic supply are projected for the Carmel Valley Ranch subdivision, adjacent property owners were told Friday night at a meeting sponsored by Unique Golf Concepts.

About 100 people responded to 200 invitations issued by the company, which proposes a 200 unit resort hotel, 855 residential units, a championship golf course, tennis club and stable area for the 1,700 parcel formerly known as the Holt Ranch.

After a slide presentation which the company has given to the Carmel Valley Property Owners' Assn. and the Monterey County Planning Commission, project director Kaye Chandler opened the floor to discussion. Many questions dealt with the well the company has drilled in Robinson Canyon, which they claim draws water from a separate aquifer than the Carmel River basin.

Chandler said their geologist determined the location of the separate aquifer by tracing a fault which runs south of the Carmel River. The slant of geological formations and the depth of the well indicate it is an entirely different source than the Carmel River basin, he said.

Under questioning, Chandler said that if the 600 foot deep well were sealed off at the top, there would be no negative effect on any plant material in the canyon. Chandler said the Robinson Canyon well, which now has an output of 300 gallons per minute, would be used solely for domestic supply.

Wastewater would then be treated, he said, and used to irrigate the golf course. Water for the course would be supplemented by two existing wells on the property, he said. Carl Hooper, engineer with George Bestor and Associates, told the group the two existing wells could be used in an emergency situation until the Robinson Canyon well could be restored.

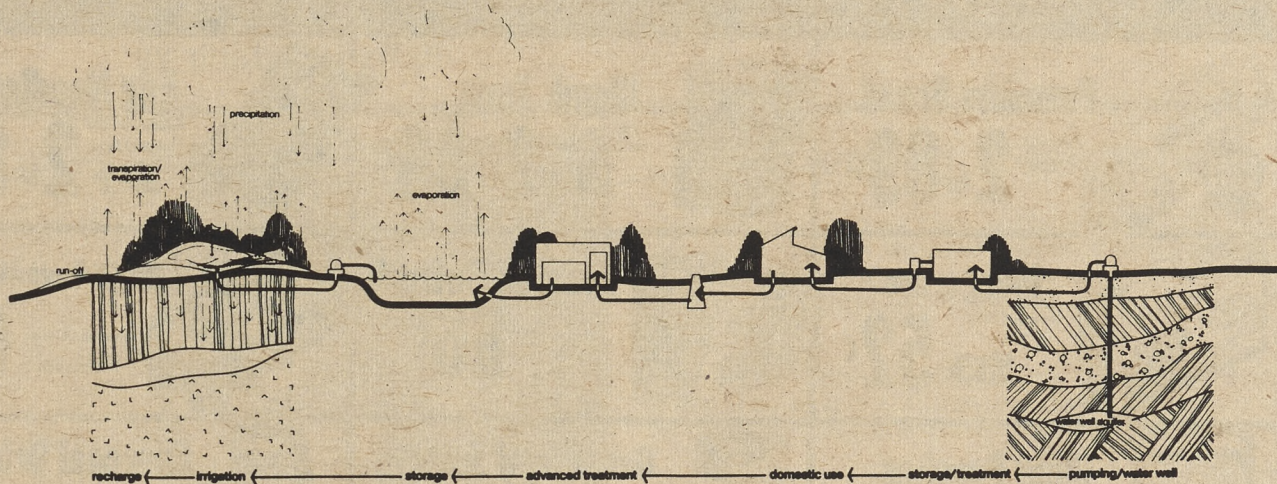

If the CalAm water company were not currently under moratorium for additional hookups by the Public Utilities Commission, Hooper admitted, a mutual water company probably would not be under consideration as it is now.

Hooper explained a mutual water company is regulated by various health departments, in this case the state health department because more than 200 units would be involved.

"Rates are not regulated here as a public utility would be through the PUC," he said. "However, the operation, safety and quality of the system are as fully regulated as CalAm is."

"If for any reason, the company would run out of water, all members would be assessed for whatever it takes to provide the supply," he said.

"There is instantaneous conversion to other wells in the event of an emergency," he said. "And the board of directors of the mutual company would probably elect to restore the Robinson Canyon well, with equal assessment to all members."

The system will be built to CalAm specifications, Hooper said, in the event CalAm would be able to assume water service to the subdivision.

Hooper briefly explained the living filter system the company foresees for the project, noting a specific engineered system is not complete at this phase in the planning process.

"The living filter system we project is one where the wastewater is treated biologically, fully chlorinated, retains no pathogens, and is suitable for use in irrigating the golf course," he began.

"The grass itself will completely remove the nitrates and phosphates sometimes claimed to cause problems in the use of treated wastewater," he continued.

"The living filter system we are projecting is the same as the Carmel Sanitary District is investigating, a true land disposal method," Hooper said.

Hooper concluded, "This is not just a way to get rid of effluent, but is done with an eye to water conservation. We will be using the water from the Robinson Canyon well to irrigate the course, reducing pumping from the Carmel River aquifer and filtering water into that aquifer which never would have reached it otherwise."

Other property owners raised questions concerning the safety of the intersection of Robinson Canyon Road and Carmel Valley Road with the increased traffic flow. The plan shows a security entrance to the property just south of the entrance to St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church.

Chandler told the group, "Our latest discussions with the county indicated Carmel Valley Road will be four-laned as far as Robinson Canyon Road by 1980 or 1981. This corresponds to the period in which our project would create a demand for such four-laning."

"The junction with Carmel Valley Road is a recognized problem and we are working with the county to reconstruct the intersection to eliminate turning hazards," he continued.

Chandler said interior project roads would generally be divided parkways and that no private roads would be constructed. Under questioning, he continued, "The design capacity for the Robinson Canyon Bridge, according to information given us by the county, well exceeds the traffic that will be generated by the project."

Hooper elaborated, "Peak hour total movements for the project will be 470 vehicles. The hypothetical limit of Robinson Canyon Road itself in the area we are discussing, according to the county, is 1,200 vehicle movements per hour."

Hooper said the count of 470 was estimated on the basis that, while the Carmel Valley Ranch project would not be a retirement community, not all of the homeowners would be breadwinners. Additionally, he said, lodge traffic would not generate peak morning and evening traffic. He also pointed out that 470 movements per hour would not be added in one lump, but would be generated over a period of years.

Chandler said the company hoped to begin construction on the golf course next spring, followed by development of residential areas surrounding and within the course. "Each phase represents about a three year program," he said. "And we expect to complete a maximum of 60 units per year."

Villa Vida appeal continuance

Over the protest of Dr. Ben Leonard's engineers and architects, the Carmel Valley Property Owners Assn. secured a second continuance for their appeal hearing on the Villa Vida complex Tuesday before the board of supervisors.

John Broberg, speaking for the CVPOA, Hannah Davidson, who presented two letters to the board, and Dorothy Durham, an adjacent property owner, encouraged the board to continue the matter until a fifth district supervisor was appointed. Chairman Roger Poyner had indicated in another context the governor's office anticipated another three to four weeks before an appointment could be made.

Russ Hasley, an architect with Hall and Goodhue Associates, who are designing the health resort, protested, "We understood a month ago when this hearing was first continued that it was a compromise decision, that if no appointment was made within that month, the hearing would continue and a decision would be reached."

He continued, "There was unanimous approval from the advisory committee and a seven to one vote for approval at the planning commission. This is not a controversial issue by any stretch of the imagination."

"Another continuance is an unfair imposition to our client," he said. "And one the project will not bear."

Supervisor Ed Norris agreed, "A second continuance would be grossly unfair. The public is entitled to having the decision making process followed, whether there are four or five members of the board of supervisors."

After Supervisor Warren Church pointed out a hearing before a board of four members would require the appellants to secure approval of 75 per cent of the board and a hearing before five supervisors would only require approval by 60 per cent of the board Poyner said, "It is not easy to continue this hearing, but I am in favor of setting it for June 10."

Poyner warned the appellants, however, "Whether there is an appointment by then or not, I will be strongly influenced to hear this matter then."

In connection with the Villa Vida appeal, the board continued to June 17 a public hearing on the notice of determination for improvements on Carmel Valley Road at Los Laureles Grade, the intersection involving some of the safety issues appellants are raising.

The work would consist, in general of constructing shoulders, which do not exist currently, excavating failed areas, placing asphalt concrete base and putting an asphalt concrete overlay over the entire roadway.

Estimated cost of the project, including engineering and contingencies during the estimated 45 day construction period, is $145,000.

The supervisors agreed to continue the matter because of the project's apparent relation to any development of the property proposed for the Villa Vida health resort.

Public works director Bruce McClain traced the history of the project, "When this project was placed in this year's work program, we knew we would need the right of way for construction of the shoulders. At that time, the property owner was in sympathy and agreed to dedicate the land to the county."

He continued, "Since then, the issue of this use permit has come up and the owner has refused to execute the deed." McClain asked the board to file a notice of determination on the project, indicating the county's intention to make the improvements, but to withhold the issuance of specifications for bidding until the rights of way were secured.

Under questioning by the board, McClain indicated the only cost to the county if the hearing on the notice of determination were continued would be through inconvenience.

Norris said, "The owner's original willingness to dedicate the right of way is apparently based on an eye to development. If the development does not occur, the road may not need widening."

Poyner agreed, "It is difficult to separate these issues." The board voted to continue the public hearing on notice of determination to June 17 at 10:30 a.m.

Fire Departments

In other business, the board approved an agreement between the newly created County Service Area 59 and County Service Area 43 to allow the Mid-Valley Fire Protection District to store an attack fire truck at the Rio Road fire station.

Under the terms of the agreement, the mid-valley district will pay $50 per month rental, no training will be conducted at the Rio Road station for the mid-Valley district, the truck will not be operational while it is stored there, and the agreement takes effect upon delivery of the truck sometime in May or June and terminates no later than Dec. 31 or earlier if the station is completed.

The county also accepted a scenic easement in connection with the Evenson Minor Subdivision near Tierra Grande.

Doberman Show set

The Cabrillo Doberman Pinscher Club has scheduled their 11th Annual Specialty Show and Obedience Show for Saturday, May 24 at the Tularcitos School, a new location for the event which was held for the last ten years at the Carmel Valley Inn.

The entries closed with 201 dogs from Arizona, California, and Nevada. Jacklyn E. Hungerland, Monterey, formerly of the Valley, will judge 46 in the obedience class.

A. Peter Knoop of Weston, Conn., will judge 175 entered in the conformation competition. The nationally known judge was the handler for the top winning Doberman, Ch. Rancho Dobes Storm, the only doberman to ever win the Westminster Show at Madison Square Garden. Storm held the title for two years in a row.

A special attraction during the luncheon intermission will be the appearance of the "Daring Dobermans." A Doberman drill team from San Francisco, who will perform a demonstration of drill work and agility work.

Bench show chairman, Mrs. Nancy Hogans, and obedience chairman, Merlyn Green, cordially invite free spectator viewing during the show hours, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. They are enthusiastically joined by committee members Norman Geis, Dick Kamerer, Wayne Purnell, Barbara Geis and Ann Blockson.

Blood bank cancelled

"An old oak leaf cluster" to Mrs. Thomas McKiernon and the many volunteers who worked long hours to set up the May 15 Blood Bank at the Community Center — and then retraced their steps to inform potential donors and workers that the drawing had been cancelled because the medical insurance hearings have depleted staffs.

A special thanks to Girl Scout Troop 2161 whose Junior leader is Mrs. Richard King. The troop had just finished hanging posters to remind the Valley residents that the blood mobile was coming when word of the cancellation was received and the troop went out again to take them all down.

According to Valley chairman Marjorie McKiernon, there is no tentative date set for a future Blood Bank, however, anyone wishing to donate is invited to phone Community Hospital for an appointment and their blood donation will be accepted there.

Tularcitos party

Families are urged to make their reservations for the Sunday chicken barbecue and swim party at the CV Community Youth Center. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for children, available at the school office.

The menu includes barbecued chicken, beans, salad, bread and drinks will be available.

Special guests at the noon to 5 p.m. party will be members of the Tularcitos staff, "a thank you" from the Tularcitos Parents Club for all they have done during the year for the children.

Poster contest

Students of all Monterey County schools are eligible to enter the poster contest just announced by the SPCA Auxiliary. The deadline is June 6 and winners will be announced August 28, Children's Day at the Monterey County Fair.

Entries are to be submitted on size 12 by 18 or 18 by 24 used vertically following the theme, "Kindness to Animals." The slogan is limited to six words.

Prizes of $15 for first place, $10 for second, $5 for third, and a ribbon for fourth place will be awarded to primary (grades 1-3), intermediate (grades 4-6), junior high (7-9) and senior high (10-12) sections. A grand prize entry will be selected from the winners.

Entries on the back must state the student's name, age, grade, address, school and address, and teacher's name. They are to be sent to poster contest chairman, Mrs. Daniel Gornel, Box 3054, Carmel, Ca.

Judges will be Charles Lee, Dusan Petrovic, Gus Arriola, Ruth Buol, and Roger Poyner.

Golden anniversary

A couple whose romance began at a dance in the old bathhouse in Oak Grove in 1923 have remained partners over the years and on Saturday will dance the anniversary waltz when they celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

Ceal Hage and Tommy Verga were married by Rev. Potter, May 17, 1925 in the parsonage of the Presbyterian Church on the corner of Franklin and Pacific in Monterey.

Their terpsichorean expertise, which won for them every dance contest around the Peninsula in the 1920s (including $25 in gold for an exhibition of fox-trotting), typified their teamwork which over the years contributed so much to community projects.

Tommy, whose recollection of world figures met during the 10 years he served as head valet at the fashionable Del Monte Hotel reads like Who's Who, opened a cleaning business in Carmel Valley in 1950. The vacation-retreat built at Camp Stefani in 1941 with rocks hauled from the Carmel River became their permanent home and the gathering spot for their many friends and those of their daughter, now Mrs. Barbara Jean Silliman of San Francisco.

It was the official meeting place of the youth group which formed the nucleus for the Community Center of which both were founders, directors, and Tommy served as director of youth activities. And of course the Vergas were enthusiastically involved in the fund drive 10 years later to build the Center's community swimming pool.

Ceal and Tommy were a part over the years of every major civic and social event, even following their "retirement" with the sale of their business in 1961. A past president of the Businessmen's Association of Carmel Valley, which in 1952 became the Chamber of Commerce, Tommy served many years on the chamber board of directors. He served with the Commercial Property Owners Assn., was a charter member of the Kiwanis Club, and a lifetime member of the Monterey Elks Club, now in his 48th year of membership.

Ceal, as past president of the Carmel Valley Women's Club and a member of the Chapel Guild, in addition to her contribution to the Valley young people, has worked on every fund drive including Community Chest, Red Cross, Heart Fund, Cancer Drive — the list and the hours are endless.

How do they plan to mark this golden anniversary? The couple who for 14 years escaped to celebrate by themselves at a romantic Tahoe hideaway are as non-committal about their plans as ever, but their many friends join in wishing them continued happiness and add a special "thank you" for sharing so many of their golden years.

Double celebration

You've heard of double ring ceremonies, but this time the celebration by a Valley foursome was for a double wedding anniversary!

Dr. and Mrs. Russell Ryan of Laurel Drive, celebrating their 13th, and Robles Del Rio residents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young, commemorating their 48th, took an anniversary jaunt to San Francisco where they wine, dined, and had a happy time they'll long remember!

Fireman's Ball

"An old oak leaf cluster" to the Fire Laddies from the Carmel Department who will man the Valley Fire House on stand-by detail this Saturday night while Fire Chief Chip Collins and his men take their one night off for the year to attend the 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Fireman's Ball at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Social chairman Larry Busick and committee members, Dick Crane, Larry Cisneros, and Ken Van Hagen, invite you to greet old friends and meet new ones while listening and dancing to the music of the Royales.

Other members of the department who are on 24 hour call throughout the year for your fire protection and members of the first aid rescue squad include: the assistant chiefs, Don Weber and Don Cummings; captains, Don Corona and Bill Parham; Lt. Kalani Fonseca; engineers, Gerry Paddock, Stan Roberts, Art Harber, Bill Ijams, John Risdon, and Peter Garneau.

Also, John Woods, Bob Oross, Dick Hindman, Bill Brodrick, Kirk Gayman, James Madsen, Bob Bartlett, Bill Conlan Jr., Joe Ortman, Jeff Frye, Augie Acuna, Tom Augustitus, Roger Gardiner, Dan Weiss, Dave Hardisty, Fran Hughes, Kermit Gayman and Alan Harber.

Remember, the admission is only $1 per person, and since the Valley Volunteers is a non-profit organization, the cost of the tickets and any other additional donation is tax deductible.

Have a ball — it's the 27th Annual Fireman's Ball — this Saturday night!

Sanitary district considers hiring fulltime engineer

By TOM LUECK

The Carmel Sanitary District Board of Directors has taken under consideration a proposal to hire a full time district engineer. The proposal, which was presented by board member Earl Moser, was discussed at the district's regular monthly meeting Monday night in Carmel city hall chambers.

Engineering functions, including design of facilities, have been handled for the district for 35 years by Kennedy Engineers of San Francisco. While acting in a consulting capacity, the district engineers have been on the job almost constantly over the last year conducting preliminary studies for the proposed land renovation of effluent operation on the eastern Odello artichoke fields, and drawing up plans for a new digester and other facilities at the sewage treatment plant.

Meeting for the first time in Carmel city hall chambers, which has become the new location for public meetings of the sanitary district, Moser told other board members that "it is a question of economics."

"I have never thought that a full time engineer would take the place of our general manager, and this has absolutely no reflection on the job that has been done by our engineers in the past," he said. Suggesting that "overhead, sustenance, and travel expenses" accrued over the past year while representatives of Kennedy Engineers have made frequent trips from San Francisco have been a significant expense for the district, he stated "we should find out exactly what we are paying and compare it to the cost of hiring a staff engineer."

Moser indicated that such an addition to the district staff would not take over the entire job which is now handled by Kennedy engineers, but would be responsible for the "day by day" engineering items.

Support for the proposal came from board member Donald Kirk, who stated "it's not totally a matter of economics. It's the cost of the board president...doing a lot that I don't think he should be required to do. It's been a full time job ever since I've been on the board."

"I am forced to do many things that I shouldn't be doing," concurred board president Herman Schull. "I shouldn't be operating in an engineering capacity."

Opposition to the proposal came from board members James Pruitt and Ted Weller. "We need it like a hole in the head," argued Pruitt. "We've got a good team running the district. When you hire an engineer and he earns more than the district manager, what does that do to the attitude of the staff," he questioned.

Weller told the board that he would only agree to the proposal for a full time engineer if the new employee were to work directly under the district manager.

Robert Kennedy, head of the consulting engineering firm who was present at this week's meeting, speculated that a competent engineer for the district's purposes might demand a salary in the neighborhood of $2,000 to $2,200 per month.

"Some time ago we concurred that there would come a time when it would be desirable to add a district engineer on the payroll," he said. He advised the board to prepare a specific job description and list of necessary qualifications before pursuing the matter any further, in order to arrive at a more accurate estimate of economic implications.

The matter was continued for further discussion at later meetings of the board over the position voiced by Weller and Pruitt that it should be tabled indefinitely.

In other business before the board this week:

--A contract was officially approved for monitoring of water quality near the district's ocean outfall in Carmel Bay. Kinnetic Laboratories of Santa Cruz, which submitted the low bid of $15,900, will undertake the monitoring program for the next year.

--Engineer Kennedy reported that the testing program on the Odello artichoke fields will be completed at the end of May. The board authorized its general manager, Max Drewien, to contract bulldozers and put the property back into the condition it was in before the testing program began over one year ago.

Congressional voting digest

Washington Bureau

The Senate passed an energy measure last month, which among other things, would authorize the President to ration gasoline in times of emergency--however the bill met with "no" votes from Senators John Tunney and Alan Cranston.

The Senate also passed a conference report on the aid to South Vietnam bill by a 3-1 margin, but the two senators went against the majority and voted no. (The final aid to South Vietnam bill was rejected by the House during the first week in May.)

Area representative Burt Talcott voted yes on six health, education and welfare measures passed by the House last month.

Following are the votes for the area's congressional delegation, including those mentioned above, for the month of April.

Senate

1. Passed bill to authorize $654 million during fiscal 1975-77 for nurse training and

$1.9 billion in fiscal 1975-76 for health services program, including community health centers, 77-14. Both senators voted no.

2. Passed bill authorizing President to ration gasoline, restrict fuel exports, restrict the raising of "old oil" prices and allow a price increase to $7.50 per barrel, from $5.25, for oil taken from existing wells, 60-25. The bill also extended the 1973 Emergency Allocation Act through March 1, 1976. Both voted no.

3. Passed bill giving HEW secretary authority to assure safety and effectiveness of medical devices such as heart pacemakers and intrauterine birth control devices (IUDs) by an 88-5 vote, with both senators voting no.

4. Passed conference report for $327 million in aid to South Vietnam, 46-17, with both senators voting no.

Amendments to the bill included:

--to delete all provisions of the bill except those authorizing funds for humanitarian aid through the U.N. and other international organizations, rejected 10-79, with both senators voting no.

--to assure no funds in the bill will be used for military aid to South Vietnam, rejected 32-61, with both senators voting yes.

--amendment to delete from the bill a provision permitting U.S. troops to assist in the withdrawal of American and foreign personnel from South Vietnam, rejected 12-80, with both senators voting no.

--amendment to Emergency Housing bill to authorize $750 for loans to unemployed persons unable to make mortgage payments, passed 89-1 with Cranston voting yes and Tunney not voting.

House

1. Voted to authorize $2.6 billion in fiscal 1976-79 under the Older American Act to assist elderly and increase funding of ACTION programs, 377-19. Talcott voted yes.

Saunders loses condition appeal

by LESLIE JOHNSON

Harold Saunders, developer of the Valley Hills Shopping Center, was unsuccessful Tuesday in his attempt to have a zoning permit condition removed which requires the dedication of about 50 feet of right of way within the plan lines for four laning of Carmel Valley Road.

The board of supervisors did, however, reduce the dedication requirement to 30 feet of right of way. No construction is allowed within county road plan lines.

Saunders has successfully litigated the dedication condition on the property in the past. The 2.8 acre parcel is in a planned commercial district with design regulations. Retail business are permitted subject to obtaining zoning permits.

A zoning permit granted by the planning commission April 30, 1969 placed the 50 foot dedication condition on the use, and the board, upon appeal, reduced the dedication requirement to 25 feet.

Saunders then secured a writ of mandate from the Superior Court of California which ordered the board to issue the permit without a condition requiring dedication, and the board complied on Oct. 21, 1969.

Zoning administrator Bob Slimmon told the board, "The planning commission and the zoning administrator was and still is faced with a policy adopted in 1968 by the board about the dedication and improvement of rights of way to the county."

"We feel the development generates its own traffic and therefore the developer should participate in the improvement of county roads," he said.

Saunders spoke briefly, "I find it hard to believe the board of supervisors would act contemptuously against the decision of the superior court."

"Placing this condition on the zoning permit (for one building when others are already on the property) is locking the barn after the horse has run away," he said.

"I wouldn't have asked for a PC zone here if I had known this kind of land take would be involved. If it were still commercial, I would have had the right to use the land more intensively. I have already given up considerable land to landscaping and parking requirements of the PC zone, but I did it because it was better for the area and helped preserve the character of the neighborhood," he continued.

"I am just asking to put a building on a site which in principle has already been approved. You're asking me to pay $30,000 for a building permit," he concluded.

Chairman Roger Poyner asked county counsel if he thought the superior court would, upon petition, issue a similar writ of mandate on this zoning permit. Counsel Bill Stouffers replied, "Any lawyer who would predict what the court would do is either a neophyte or a damn fool."

Stouffers continued that he believed the requirement for dedication was within the board's province under state and county law.

Poyner said, "There is no doubt a property owner directly on a county road needs the access and its capability to handle traffic and that property owner will benefit from any widening. The value of the property would increase if a choke road were eliminated. It is not unjust to ask for increased use if that use makes the property more valuable."

When Supervisor Dusan Petrovic questioned the necessity for 50 feet of dedicated right of way, public works director Bruce McClain explained the county's plans for four laning of Carmel Valley Road within five years up to the vicinity of Valley Greens Road, which is immediately west of the Saunders property. He pointed to various locations along the road even further east which have already dedicated the right of way necessary for four laning as far as Robinson Canyon Road.

Supervisor Ed Norris spoke, "Access to Carmel Valley Road with reference to this property and widening to enable use is a contribution to the value of the property and I think the take is probably appropriate under the county ordinance."

He continued "However, it is significant to note this is a fifth of an acre take in a small parcel. And we should remember the existing plan lines do protect the county's interest."

Supervisor Warren Church, who ultimately moved to deny the appeal but to reduce the dedication condition to 30 feet, said, "If we are going to continue our policies of dedication, I don't see how this property can be exempt."

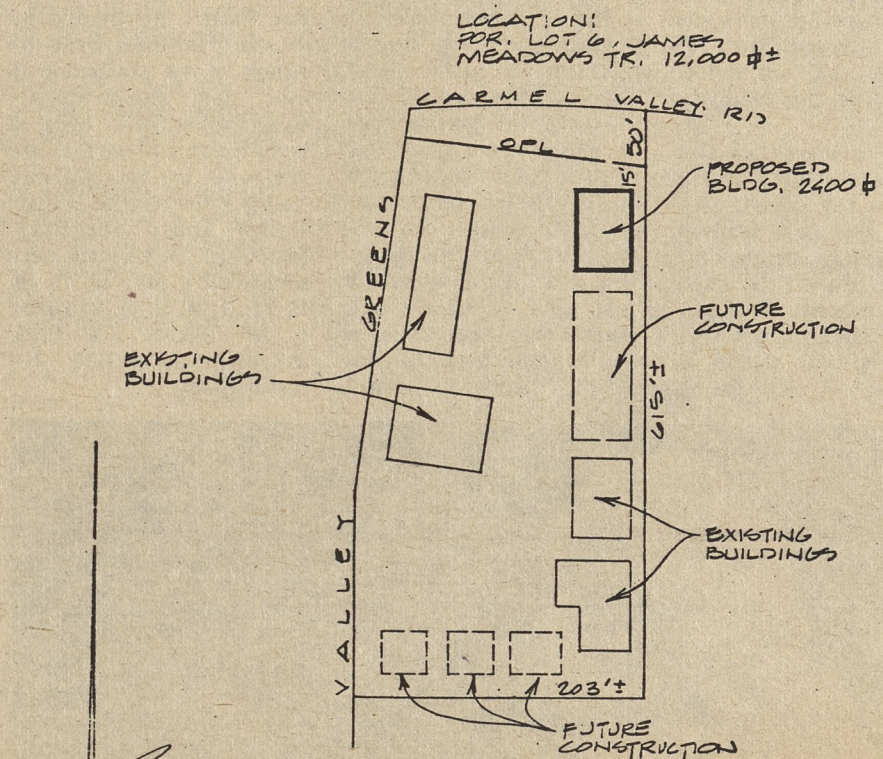

Petrovic added, "If this slice of land is dedicated to the county, who will pay taxes on it? It seems to me the appellant would receive a tax relief on property he is not allowed to develop anyway."

The 50 foot right of way designated within county plan lines on this map at the northernmost edge of the Saunders property was reduced to 30 feet after his appeal to have a right of way dedication condition removed. Saunders successfully litigated a similar condition removal in 1969 through the superior court.

De Amaral Road

Short offshoot of Marquard Lane, which in turn is an offshoot of the upper end of the loop formed by Rancho Road.

It was named for Frank De Amaral, who was born on Point Lobos August 17, 1899 and died November 30, 1973. His father, Jacinto De Amaral, was a member of a pioneer family and settled on a 360-acre ranch at Point Lobos. His mother was Ann Freitas De Amaral. Frank De Amaral was a widely-known contractor who built the Carmel Valley Road from Los Laureles Grade through Carmel Valley Village and also built the main roads in the Carmel Highlands area. In addition, he was well known as a rancher who ran cattle in Carmel Valley and carried on farming activities in partnership with S.F.B. Morse at the River Ranch. Mr. De Amaral is survived by his wife, Beatrice Davenport De Amaral, a brother, two sisters and four grandchildren.

Del Mesa Carmel

A retirement colony on the north side of Carmel Valley Road in the lower Valley area between Martin Canyon and Roach Canyon.

The developer gave the name because the houses are built on a flat-topped promontory resembling the "mesas" (flat-topped hills) of the Southwest. He, however, neglected to consider that "mesa" is a feminine noun in Spanish and should have been preceded by "de la" instead of "del."

Del Este, Calle

Road in Robles del Rio. Named "Street of the East" undoubtedly because it is one of the easternmost streets in the development.

Del Fino Place

Short, wide business street in Carmel Valley Village. Built by Peter Del Fino when he took over the Carmel Valley Airport.

Dorris Drive

Street running south off Carmel Valley Road at Mid-Valley Shopping Center.

Named for Dorris Driggs Pintar (Mrs. Joel Pintar) of Pacific Grove. Mrs. Pintar was a longtime friend of Lydia Mason Alsop (Mrs. Maurice Alsop), who, with her husband, did the subdividing of this piece of the Valley. Mrs. Alsop, who now lives at Big Sur, is a granddaughter of Edward Berwick, early settler on the property involved.

Dougherty Place

Very short dead-end street off Carmel Knolls Drive. Named for two original investors in the Carmel Knolls development: Mrs. Clotilde Q. Dougherty and Mrs. John F. Dougherty.

Eddy Road

Runs off Carmel Valley Road on the northern side a few hundred yards east of Mid-Valley.

It got its name from Robert Eddy, a Canadian who built the first house on the road in 1940 or '41 and lived there until 1955 when he returned to Canada.

El Echo

Short cul-de-sac in Robles del Rio. Probably a misspelling of the Spanish word "eco," which means the same as the English "echo."

Elinore Place

Cul-de-sac at the lower end of the Rancho Tierra Grande subdivision, opposite Mid-Valley.

Named for Elinore (Mrs. T.A.) Work, whose husband owned the Work Ranch just across the ridge to the north of Carmel Valley. Mrs. Work was a close friend of Frank and Jet Porter, the developers of Tierra Grande.

Encina Drive, Via Las Encinas

Encina Drive is a dead-end road running north off Miramonte Road. Via Las Encinas is a new road running southwest from West Garzas Road and forming part of the development designated as Rancho Del Monte No. 14.

Encina is the Spanish name for live oak, which is abundant throughout Carmel Valley, including these areas.

Fairway Place

Short residential street south of Valley Greens Drive. The name comes from the fairways of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club course, which adjoin the street.

'Cosi Fan Tutte' opens

The Hidden Valley Music Seminars will present Mozart's opera "Cosi Fan Tutte" (They All Do It) in the campus theatre opening on May 16. The musical direction of "Cosi Fan Tutte" is in the hands of pianist conductor Randall Bare, former assistant conductor and accompanist for the Music Seminars who also conducted Mozart's "Don Giovanni" at Hidden Valley earlier this year. Also returning to direct "Cosi Fan Tutte" is Robert Darling, professional designer-director who has received critical acclaim for his work with the San Francisco Opera Company, the Lyric Opera of Chicago, Santa Fe Opera, and with the opera companies of San Diego, Anchorage, Denver, and Kansas City.

The four principals from the cast of "Don Giovanni" are returning to sing in "Cosi Fan Tutte." Sue Gorenium, formerly of the Lucerne Opera and San Francisco Spring Opera, will sing the role of Fiordiligi; Marilyn Coles, newly signed member of the Oldenburg Opera in Germany, will sing the role of Dorabella; John Giger, who sang the role of Don Giovanni, will take the role of Guglielmo; and Reg Huston, two-time finalist in the Western Metropolitan Opera Auditions, returns to sing the role of Don Alfonso. New members of the cast for "Cosi Fan Tutte" are lyric tenor Michael Rosso, student of Simoneau and recently seen as Camille in Lehar's

"Merry Widow" with the San Francisco Lamplighters; and soprano Claudette Peterson, recent graduate of the San Francisco Conservatory and winner of the Henry Holt competition, who will sing the role of Despina in this production.

Reservations for "Cosi Fan Tutte" are limited by the size of the theatre and the nature of the production to 200 per performance. Reservations will be honored in the order in which they are received by the Carmel Valley office of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars. There are ten performances scheduled — May 16, 17, 18, 23, 24, 25, 26, 30, 31, and June 1. All tickets are $4.50. Telephone 659-3115 for reservations.

ON LEAVE FROM the San Francisco Opera, Marilyn Coles and Sue Gorenium reexamine the score of "Cosi Fan Tutte" which opens May 16 at Hidden Valley.

'Gigi' -- a fine production

by Jeff Hudelson

An attractive and well-paced production of Lerner and Lowe's musical, "Gigi," opened this past weekend.

Presented in King Hall and produced by the Naval Postgraduate School's Little Theatre, "Gigi" is a fine example of a club production.

As in all club productions, there is a great range of skill and experience in the cast. Some, like Susie Polk, are polished performers; others, like Scott Castner, are in their first show.

The musical accompaniment of Mildred Kline's orchestra is quite adequate; and although some of the songs could not always be heard over the music, the fault was invariably due to a lack of projection on the part of the singer, and not too much volume from the orchestra.

For the most part, the show's "production numbers" were well done. One

"Maxim's Waltz," is not only marvelous to watch, but firmly establishes the spirit of Parisian society at the turn of the century.

Director Dale Lefler and his choreographer, Susie Polk, have managed to integrate the dances into the body of the show with an almost casual ease that has eliminated the jarring effect they have in some musicals.

They have managed this by doing two things. First, Lefler has directed his actors' movements in a stylized manner that suits this society. Second, he has used his dancers and extras (who do yeoman service) expertly in dressing the stage. Because of this, we find their shifts into dance quite normal.

Just as the acting is stylized, so are the many beautiful sets of Red Layton. These constantly changing sets and the lovely costumes of Jerry Welling's crew aid in establishing the artificiality of this Parisian fairy tale.

The only fault in costuming is that too often (during scene changes) there were black costumes in front of and disappearing into a black curtain. Perhaps to make up for this, "Gigi" has the most marvelous collection of women's headwear I have seen in a long time. If you want to know why millinery is an art, go and see "Gigi."

The title role is charmingly played by Julie Zimmerman. Her artlessly innocent metamorphosis from child to woman is well done. "I Never Want To Go Home Again" is probably her most effective song.

Gigi's grandmother (Gisela Hartman) is a plot sustaining character whose performance may be underrated because the role is not flashy. Aunt Alicia is a flashy role and Ms. Polk commands the stage in her scenes. Particularly amusing is the scene and song "The Contract."

Touch For Health Demonstration

A one hour introduction and demonstration of "Touch For Healing" will be given free of charge at the Northern California Savings and Loan, Thursday February 27th, at 8:00 p.m. "Touch For Health" is the topic for a growing number of people learning to help themselves relieve pain and tension and anxiety through natural methods. The basis for treatment is the testing and integrating of muscles into a coordinated balanced functional unit.

The demonstration will show how muscles are tested then treated, using reflex massage points on the torso, holding points on the skull and acupuncture meridian tracing along the Chinese "channels of energy" in the body.

The object for "Touch of Health" is to provide the lay person with a means to test and help himself and his family when minor problems arise. "Touch For Health" techniques are particularly helpful in cases of tension, anxiety, neuritis, neuralgia, incoordination, skeletal difficulties, and a host of pain syndromes. Although these problems show some of the best responses when treated with these methods, it has been shown that the whole body can benefit from "Touch For Health" techniques.

This will be the second in a series of introduction demonstrations on "Touch for Health." The long term objective is to provide the entire community with a means to help themselves without an immediate run to the doctor and without reliance on aspirins, pain killers, and relaxants.

All the members of the community are invited to attend the demonstration Thursday, May 22nd, at 8:00 p.m. There is no charge and there is no obligation to learn "Touch of Health."

Our family spends most of its spare time, if you can call it spare, with horses. The horses also use up most of our spare change. The horse-hater of the family tends to "ha-rumph!" a lot about how much of this was "spare" in the first place.

When it was his turn to choose a spring vacation spot, we did not saddle up and ride off into the sunset en famille. We drove to Stateline, Nev. at Lake Tahoe. Horsehater intended to unload his share of the family spare change in the slot machines. We would see the bright lights and the casinos. Any horsing around we did was to be strictly nonequestrian. equestrian.

At the motel desk we picked up several brochures advertising the tourist attractions of Lake Tahoe. One advertised: Stateline Stables -- sleigh rides, trail rides -- "open most all the time."

The stables were easy to find, only a short walk from the glittering casinos and almost immediately behind the biggest shopping center in town. Stateline, Nev. and its neighboring community of South Lake Tahoe, Ca. are laid out along a narrow strip following the lake shore. In spite of being right in town, the stables were snuggled into a thick pine forest at the base of a mountain.

Riding stables at winter's end all look alike. The barns need paint, the fenceposts lean, parking lots need resurfacing, and the horses need shedding out. A line of lean, lank-looking horses wearing western saddles stood tied along a row of mangers. They were picking at the hay in front of them without much appetite.

A little blond girl came out of a silver housetrailer. "My daddy is coming. Here's the book. You have to sign the book," she said, handing us a clipboard where riders signed a release form. If we had come to ride, Daddy's helper was ready to do business.

Painted signs on the barn wall warned against galloping on the trails or bringing a horse in hot. One hour guided rides were listed at the same price as one hour self-guided rides.

Pretty soon, a hard-working daddy wearing farmer shoes and a baseball cap came around the barn.

"Nice horses," we said with great condescension. "That one on the end there looks sort of like an Arab."

We said that to show we knew lots and lots about horses. We'd let this riding stable clyde know what was what.

"Eeeyup," he replied. "Ten purebred Arabs standing there. The others are part Arabs."

The little girl's mommy joined us. "We like Arabians," she said. "They're a good kind of horse for our kind of riding."

"I'm Pat Fitzgerald," said daddy. "This is my wife, Donna." Pat and Donna Fitzgerald? Oh great heavens! If we were religiously inclined, we would have knelt and made the sign of the horse -- or at least set off our boots from off our feet. This corral was holy ground.

Pat and Donna Fitzgerald are only the biggest names in the world of endurance riding. They have won practically every long, hard, competitive ride in the country, many of which they inspired or helped organize. Four of the biggest are the Diamond 100 mile (Red Bluff), The Western States Trail Ride (Tevis Cup), The Bonanza Ox Trail Ride (Reno), and the Nevada All States Ride (Virginia City), all of which by no coincidence are in the not-too-distant neighborhood.

The Fitzgeralds are not just superstars of endurance riding. They are like founding fathers to this booming sport.

In Australia, another place where endurance riding competition is popular, it is Pat Fitzgerald's face that is sculpted on the belt buckles given as prizes to riders who manage to cross the finish line without dying.

Those weren't just lean, lank horses we were looking at. They were hard, fit athletes, tough enough to go 100 mountainous miles in one day. The dudes who walk those horses up and down the mountainside by the hour have no idea that they are riding champion endurance horses.

According to Pat Fitzgerald, the demands of endurance riding and of running a rental stable for dudes dovetail very nicely. He rents the horses for only an hour at a time, no pack trips or half day rentals. That way he sees the horses every hour and if a horse is being roughly used he can send the drugstore cowboy packing. The horses are very sensible about the mountain trails. Being fit seems to prevent accidents. Last year there was not so much as a banged leg in the entire stable.

Pat and Donna or their young son, Mike, who is already a seasoned endurance rider are happy to take out guided rides. They also have faith enough in their horses to send them out with dudes any hour of the day or night. The horses have alfalfa in their mangers at all times; they are always ready to go. Pat claims they once had a party of 30 drunks galloping all over the mountainside at 4 a.m. No problem.

To make the stables especially inviting for families and beginners, the Fitzgeralds do not wear cowboy hats and they discourage cowboys and horse traders from hanging around. The stable does not take in boarding horses. A boarder showing off might make a beginner feel out of place.

The riding stable operates all year round although in the winter there is enough snow on the ground that they can ride right over the tops of the fences. About 20 horses winter at Lake Tahoe and in the spring Pat brings up the rest from pasture near Lodi, Ca. The pastured horses arrive fat. Pat takes great care to work them gently until they harden up. "Fat horses have accidents," he says. "Fit ones don't."

The athletic condition of the Fitzgerald horses is no accident. A visiting Australian was able to choose a horse from the dude string one Friday morning when he decided on the spur of the moment to compete in an endurance ride 700 miles away.

He drove to Utah arriving just as the horses were leaving the starting line. He rode the horse 100 miles and won the ride. Still without rest, he drove the truck and trailer 700 miles back. The horse was sound enough to go out with the rest of the dude string on Monday.

We doubt that any of our horsy family will ever get that fit in just their spare time.

Parker-Tamagni engaged

The engagement of Susan Brooke Parker of Carmel and Steven Joseph Tamagni of Salinas was announced at a small dinner party May 2 given by Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Richard F. Parker, parents of the bride-to-be. The couple will be married August 16 at the Presidio Post Chapel.

Susan is a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Salinas and is employed as a dental-assistant in Seaside.

Steven is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Tamagni of Salinas. He graduated from Palma High School in Salinas and is now a senior at the University of San Francisco majoring in math. He plans to continue his studies and earn a masters in mathematics.

Local drive begins

The Multiple Sclerosis Society will begin to recruit volunteers in Monterey with the help of Mrs. Patricia Bowen, who was named Monterey Peninsula MS Society's Mother of the Year, in honor of Mother's Day and to begin the 1975 Multiple Sclerosis Society Annual fund raising drive. "We have a fulltime office in Salinas, but we need somebody in Monterey to spark the Volunteers in Multiple Sclerosis (VIMS) drive here. Even though the Salinas Chapter was just started two years ago, it has expanded to the point of starting a chapter in this area. We will be soliciting funds and volunteers this month in this area and hope to have enough volunteers to eventually open an office here," Mrs. Bowen stated. The Greater Monterey Bay Area Multiple Sclerosis Society Chapter, covering Santa Cruz, San Benito and Monterey Counties, supplies information on Multiple Sclerosis from its Salinas Chapter, handles literature on what to expect with MS, advises people on where to go and what agencies are available for further help.

An Air Force captain from Carmel Valley, was decorated with the Air Force Commendation Medal in recent ceremonies at Vandenberg AFB.

Cpt. James E. Kirby, son of Mrs. Milton M. Adam, 160 Laurel Dr., Carmel Valley, is a weather officer and was cited for meritorious service at Lakenheath RAF Station, England.

Now assigned at Vandenberg, he serves with Detachment 30, 6th Weather Wing.

Mental Health

Lawrence Metcalf of Carmel Valley, incoming president of the Monterey County Assn. for Mental Health, is among speakers scheduled for that group's annual meeting and banquet Sunday at 5:30 p.m. at the Outrigger Restaurant. discuss "Mental Health in Monterey County, Where Do We Go From Here" will be Dr. Alexander Monto, director of county mental health facilities, and Dr. Fred Ziegler, director of mental health services of Monterey's Community Hospital.

Bay decision postponed

By TOM LUECK
The decision as to whether Carmel Bay will be designated an Area of Special Biological Significance has been postponed until June 19 by the state Water Resources Control Board.

At a public hearing in Monterey last Friday, Mrs. Jean Auer, a member of the state board, indicated that comments from concerned citizens in the Carmel area will be accepted until May 19.

Mrs. Auer chaired the meeting along with representatives of the regional Water Resources Control Board in San Luis Obispo. Roughly 50 people were present; representatives of the scientific community, officials of the Carmel and Pebble Beach Sanitary Districts, spokesmen for Peninsula conservation groups, and apprehensive taxpayers.

The bulk of testimony before the state panel was in support of the proposed restrictive designation, and several questions were answered about the effects of an Area of Special Biological Significance (ASBS).

Mrs. Auer explained that the proposed designation is a "completely different issue" from various other state proposals to designate the bay as an "Underwater Park" or an "Ecological Reserve." The former, which would be imposed by the state Water Resources Control Board, would be intended solely to prohibit point discharge of wastewater into the bay. The others are being considered by the Department of Parks and Recreation and would affect recreational use of the bay, she said.

In fact, Mrs. Auer indicated, the designations would be compatible. The bay could be made an Underwater Park as well and an ASBS, she said.

When questioned by Mrs. Auer if recreational use encouraged through the designations would cause damage to beaches and underwater areas, he of the Carmel Sanitary District, which has for two years discharged its secondary effluent into the bay from an ocean outfall, she stated "we have never said 'you can't use your outfall tomorrow.' We are saying phase out."

Jim Berry, a marine biologist for the Department of Parks and Recreation, voiced support for the ASBS designation. After diving in the area of the Carmel Sanitary District ocean outfall, which is located 675 feet off shore from the Carmel River beach, he reported finding the water "an orange and brown color" near the diffuser apparatus. Even under ideal conditions, the secondary effluent discharged through the outfall would bring "certain chemicals into the food chain of the sea otters," he contended.

Noting Senate Resolution 24, sponsored by Senator Donald Grunsky, which would make the bay an "ecological reserve," Berry stated that his department "currently hopes to establish an underwater park in the testified that the waters off Point Lobos are now a state reserve and "no deliterious effects" have resulted from recreational diving in Whalers Cove and Bluefish Cove.

The most persuasive testimony in favor of the ASBS came from Dr. John Phillips of the Hopkins Marine Station at Moss Landing. The Carmel Sanitary District's ocean outfall, "has not caused catastrophic change, but what we can't come to grips with is the long term change," he said.

Through a three-year study of the effects of DDT emanating from the Salinas River, it had been found "virtually impossible to predict" where pollutants would concentrate in a body of sea water, he reported. Producing diagrams which showed concentrations of pollutants dispersed throughout Monterey Bay, he said it would be a "prudent" decision to prohibit use of the wastewater outfall in the Carmel Bay.

Monterey attorney Tom

Penn Mott in 1971 had described development of the outfall as a "short term solution . . . with the long term solution being complete elimination of discharge."

Addressing board member Auer, he exclaimed "I want to thank you for helping me to bring them (the Carmel Sanitary District) kicking and screaming into the twentieth century."

Further support for the ASBS came from Dr. Betty Davis of the Hastings Reservation in the Carmel Valley, Jud Vandervere of the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club, Charlotte Clark of Carmel, and Gary Tate, general manager of the Monterey Peninsula Parks District.

Dr. Francis Herrick, president of the Carmel Citizens Committee, told the panel of water resources officials "the real threat to the bay comes from excessive recreational use." He expressed support for immediate designation of the bay as an Area of Special Biological Significance with a provision for continued use of the outfall until land renovation, the alternative for effluent treatment which has been given the most consideration by the sanitary district, can be developed.

Lee Otter, a staff planner for the Central Regional Commission of the California Coastal Commission, read a resolution of the commission supporting that ASBS designation. In an inventory of marine resources the commission had found that the bay contains unique factors which include "unrivaled clear water," a "biological crossroads of northern and southern species," and the Pescadero Pinnacles and the marine canyon, he reported.

Can muscle balancing help you?

The Carmel Chiropractic Arts Center utilizes Applied Kinesiology, or muscle balancing, as one of its therapies. The staff also teaches a simplified form of therapy to members of the community free of charge. The treatment has helped many people across the United States by relieving pain, tension and anxiety through natural methods. The basis of treatment is the use of reflex massage points on the torso, holding points on the skull, and acupuncture points to test and integrate muscles into a coordinated, balanced functional unit.

Applied Kinesiology demonstration classes are held in the Northern California Savings & Loan building in Carmel and are announced in the Pine Cone.

For information about classes or appointments for examinations or treatments, call Carmel Chiropractic Arts Center - 625-2555.
